Data Collection

Maria Laura Rodriguez, Megan Snyder, Leanne Johnson, and Yiran(Laura) Ma
The Stalking Project
Accessibility of information

How easy is it to obtain other peoples’ information in contemporary society and how is it relevant to privacy?
Connect with friends and the world around you on Facebook.

See photos and updates from friends in News Feed.

Share what’s new in your life on your Timeline.

Find more of what you’re looking for with Graph Search.

Sign Up
It’s free and always will be.

PHIL

phill123@gmail.com

phill123@gmail.com

Password

Birthday

Month

Day

Year

Gender

Female

Male

By clicking Sign Up, you agree to our Terms and that you have read our Data Policy, including our Cookie Use.
What we found out about you...
How many people had their workplace accessible to the public:

- Yes: 20.0
- No: 27.0

43% Yes
57% No
How many people had their hometown accessible to the public:

68% Yes
32% No
How many people had their high school accessible to the public:

32% Yes
68% No
How many people had any other college listed to the public:

- Yes: 4.0
- No: 43.0

9% Yes
91% No
How many people had their current location listed to the public:

- Yes: 43.0
- No: 4.0

91% Yes
9% No
How many people had their pictures accessible to the public:

98% Yes
2% No
How many people had their family relationships accessible to the public:

17% Yes
83% No
General Observations

- Only one individual did not have accessible photos.
- Three individuals changed their name or privacy settings in the midst of this project.
- Everyone we interviewed was at least a little bit uncomfortable.
PRIVACY

- Door Concept: Privacy has an object and justification.

- In Olmstead v U.S (1928): Reasonable expectation of privacy.

Do Facebook users have a reasonable expectation of Conceptual Vacuum

- Lack of consciousness
- Lack of conception on personal privacy and social media
- Or people just don’t care.
Change your privacy settings.